Baseball Magnates Do Not Care to Have Reserve Law in Court.

CONCESSIONS BY BOTH.

Freedman and the Big Pitcher Will Be Called Upon to Yield a Point.

NATIONAL BOARD SETTLES KNOTS

Many Questions Disposed Of by the Arbitration Committee—The Meeting Will Be Continued To-Day.

The National League of Baseball Clubs has decided to make an effort to settle the dispute out of court. The magnates have a natural aversion to breaking laws with the law, and the controversy regarding the Hoosier pitcher has many features, that, if submitted to the legal test, might prove embarrassing. Therefore, the magnates are determined, if possible, to compromise the difficulty and keep the reserve rule out of the reach of the lawyers.

This fact was fully set forth in the Journal of yesterday morning and was corroborated by the magnates who came to New York to attend a special meeting a few days before the opening of the championship season. The notices for the meeting were sent by telegraph last Saturday and while not all the clubs sent delegates the absentees were represented by proxy. Nearly all the officials denied any knowledge of the proposed action regarding Rube, but none would deny that the case of the pitcher would be acted upon.

Yesterday was devoted entirely to a session of the National Board, and it will reconvene this morning. President Young stated that the special meeting of the League would follow the adjournment of the National Board.

President Freedman admitted that the league would take some action in the case of Rube, but insisted that the club would not pay the pitcher any back salary or remit fines.

There was much speculation as to the plan of procedure for the settlement of the trouble. One magnate said there would have to be concessions by both sides in order to arrive at an amicable settlement. If the pitchers could not agree then the league would probably take the matter in its own hands, pay the player's back salary, terminate the contract, and permit the pitcher to sign with some other club. The calling of the meeting indicates clearly that the league is not about to close the dispute before another championship season opens.

The Board of Arbitration, consisting of N. E. Young, C. B. Byrne, J. H. Egan, J. E. Carroll, and J. H. Egan, met yesterday at the Hotel Hamilton. The first was that of Howard J. Earl, manager of the Eastern League, who used abusive language to spectators and also committed technical assault on E. T. Rogers, president of the club. Earl was fined $100 and suspended for one month.

He appealed to the National Board, and the matter was referred to the Board of Directors of the Eastern League, who were asked to suspend Earl for one month.

WHAT WILL ALMA MATER SAY?

The Fordham College Boys Make One Lone Swat Off the Giants.

As the sun turned his picture to the wall behind Coogan's Bluff a most dejected troupe of young men in red caps and blue uniforms made their escape from the Polo Grounds. The humbled but still hopeful youths formed the Fordham College team, and they had just finished an exhibition reel with the Giants, at the ratio of 23 to 0.

During the engagement the Giants visited enough tallies to create a reserve fund and against a less profitable day, and also played themselves to a position to hoard up a number of nine who were expected to be called upon to fill the shoes of the regulars.

After three innings J. Bentley Seymour tore with the collegians. He pinked a couple of them in the sixth, and the rest got frightened and stood so far from the plate that a barge out would have been more appropriate than a bat. While J. Bentley pitched, the rest of the team was in a state of confusion. Only two of them, second base and catcher, had any business to enjoy the scenery. They were the only ones who were not hit. Bentley made his last out. The first base. Saunders concluded the engagement. He didn't hit any one, and the students' indignation was at a low ebb. Captain Joyce rested from his labors. Bill Clark took the third corner and turned out a number of nine who were expected to be called upon to fill the shoes of the regulars.
